Alexandra of Denmark was the Queen Consort of King Edward VII of the United Kingdom. She was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, on 1 December 1844. Her parents were King Christian IX of Denmark and Louise of Hesse-Kassel. Alexandra was the eldest of six children, and she had three brothers and two sisters.

Alexandra was a beautiful and intelligent child. She was educated by private tutors, and she spoke several languages fluently. Alexandra was also a talented musician and artist.

In 1863, Alexandra married Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, the eldest son of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert. The wedding was a grand affair, and it was attended by royalty from all over Europe. Alexandra soon became a popular figure in British society. She was known for her beauty, her charm, and her intelligence.

Alexandra and Albert Edward had five children: three sons and two daughters. Their eldest son, Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence and Avondale, died in 1892 at the age of 28. Their second son, George, succeeded his father to the throne in 1901. Their third son, Alexander John, Earl of Athlone, served as the Governor-General of Canada from 1940 to 1946.

Alexandra was a devoted wife and mother. She was also a compassionate and caring woman. She often visited hospitals and charities, and she was always willing to help those in need.

Alexandra died on 20 November 1925, at the age of 80. She was buried at Windsor Castle, alongside her husband.
