The film follows two aging friends, Colin (Paul Reiser) and Mitch (Edie Falco), on a road trip through Iceland. Colin is a recently retired doctor who is looking to reconnect with his adventurous side, while Mitch is a more cautious and pragmatic woman who is along for the ride.

Barrymore plays Marianne, a free-spirited and impulsive woman who Colin and Mitch meet along the way. Marianne is everything that Colin and Mitch are not: she's spontaneous, reckless, and always up for a good time.

Barrymore gives a nuanced and layered performance as Marianne. She captures the character's wild spirit and sense of adventure, but she also shows her vulnerability and insecurity.

Land Ho! is a departure from Barrymore's previous work. She's often been typecast in roles as the sweet and innocent girl next door, but in Land Ho! she shows that she's capable of much more.

The film is a funny, heartwarming, and thought-provoking look at aging, friendship, and adventure. Barrymore's performance is one of the best of her career, and it's sure to surprise and delight audiences.

Behind the Scenes with Drew Barrymore

In a recent interview, Barrymore talked about what drew her to the role of Marianne.

"I was really drawn to the character of Marianne because she's so different from me," Barrymore said. "She's so free-spirited and adventurous, and she doesn't care what other people think. I really admire that about her."

Barrymore also talked about the challenges of playing Marianne.

"The biggest challenge was trying to capture her wild spirit without making her seem too over-the-top," Barrymore said. "I wanted her to be relatable, even though she's so different from me."

Barrymore's performance in Land Ho! is a testament to her versatility as an actress. She's able to play a wide range of roles, from the sweet and innocent girl next door to the free-spirited and adventurous Marianne.

The Road Trip of a Lifetime

Land Ho! is a road trip movie, and it takes Colin, Mitch, and Marianne on a journey through some of Iceland's most beautiful and remote landscapes.

The film's director, Martha Stephens, said that she wanted to use the road trip setting to explore the characters' relationships and their own personal journeys.

"The road trip is a metaphor for the journey that Colin, Mitch, and Marianne are taking in their own lives," Stephens said. "They're all at a crossroads, and they're trying to figure out what they want to do with the rest of their lives."

Land Ho! is a beautiful and moving film that will stay with you long after the credits have rolled. It's a film about friendship, adventure, and the search for meaning in life.
