Protest culture is a form of political expression that involves the public expression of dissent or disapproval. Protest cultures can take many forms, from peaceful demonstrations to violent riots. The Companion Protest Culture Society 17 (PCS17) is a group of activists who engage in creative and nonviolent protests to raise awareness of important social issues.

The History of PCS17

PCS17 was founded in 2017 by a group of friends who were frustrated with the lack of progress on social justice issues. The group's mission is to "use creativity and nonviolence to challenge the status quo and create a more just and equitable society."

PCS17 has organized a number of successful protests, including a protest against police brutality, a march for climate justice, and a rally for LGBTQ+ rights. The group has also been involved in a number of community outreach projects, such as a food drive for the homeless and a voter registration drive.

The Goals of PCS17

PCS17 has a number of goals, including:

- To raise awareness of important social issues
- To challenge the status quo and create a more just and equitable society
- To use creativity and nonviolence to make a difference in the world

The Methods of PCS17

PCS17 uses a variety of methods to achieve its goals, including:

- Organizing protests
- Engaging in community outreach
- Creating art and music
- Writing and speaking about social justice issues

The Impact of PCS17

PCS17 has had a significant impact on the local community. The group's protests have helped to raise awareness of important social issues, and the group's community outreach projects have helped to make a difference in the lives of people in need. PCS17 is a model for how citizens can use their voices to make a difference in the world.

How to Get Involved with PCS17

If you are interested in getting involved with PCS17, there are a number of ways to do so. You can attend a protest, volunteer for a community outreach project, or donate to the group. You can also follow PCS17 on social media to stay up-to-date on the group's activities.
